

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In the step of executing an event of a schedule for each type of schedule, this schedule reminder system is provided with a database having information
5 about whether to report what time a message that specifies the contents of work required for executing this event to a user. The schedule reminder system reports the message that specifies the contents of work required before the event occurs based on the database from schedule information entered by the user and the information about the date when the event occurs, to the user,
10 as a message, when it is specified using the database.